

CLEAR in a Day: Same-Day Bilateral Cataract Surgery

Both eyes, one visit, faster visual recovery

Traditionally, cataract surgery is performed on one eye at a time, weeks apart. Same-day bilateral cataract surgery, which we call CLEAR in a Day, allows both eyes to be treated in a single visit. This approach is gaining wide acceptance because of its convenience, safety record, and faster return to clear vision.

Why Consider Both Eyes in One Day

1 Faster Visual Recovery

Both eyes recover together, so your brain adapts to balanced vision sooner. Most patients see well within days instead of weeks.

2 One Preparation, One Recovery

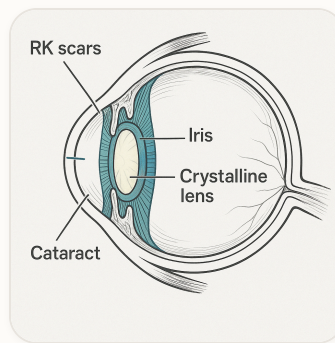

You go through pre-operative preparation and the recovery process once instead of twice, reducing disruption to your schedule.

3 Fewer Office Visits

Combined scheduling means fewer trips to the surgery center and fewer follow-up appointments overall.

4 Proven Safety

Large studies confirm that same-day bilateral surgery is as safe as the traditional staged approach when performed with strict protocols.

Each eye is treated as a completely separate procedure

How I Keep This Safe

✓ Two Separate Procedures

Each eye is treated as an independent surgery with separate instruments, drapes, and medications.

✓ Different Lot Numbers

Lens implants, solutions, and medications come from different manufacturing lots to eliminate batch-related risk.

✓ Careful Patient Selection

Not everyone is a candidate. I evaluate each patient to ensure bilateral surgery is appropriate for their specific situation.

✓ First Eye Checkpoint

The second eye proceeds only after confirming the first surgery was uncomplicated.

✓ Experienced Surgeon

Same-day bilateral surgery requires high-volume surgical experience and meticulous technique. This is what I do every day.

What You Should Expect

You arrive for one surgical visit. The first eye is completed, then a brief pause, followed by the second eye. Total time in the surgery center is typically under two hours. You will use separate eye drops for each eye and return for follow-up the next day. Most patients are driving and back to normal activities within a few days.

Is This Right for You?

Same-day bilateral surgery is ideal for healthy eyes with straightforward cataracts. Patients with complex conditions, prior eye surgeries, or only one functioning eye may be better served by the traditional staged approach. We will discuss this together during your consultation.

Questions to Bring to Your Consultation

- Am I a good candidate for same-day bilateral surgery?
- How quickly will I be able to drive after surgery?
- Will I need someone with me for the entire day?
- What safety protocols do you follow for both-eye procedures?
- What happens if there is a complication during the first eye?
- How does this affect my insurance coverage or out-of-pocket cost?
